Hi, Heinz – The goal is for ADEQ to be able to talk about its role in the voluntary air monitoring project and its perspective on addressing the environmental odors and hydrogen sulfide. There is no expectation for you to discuss activities where ADH could better provide the information. It's unfortunate that ADH will not be at the charrette; however, we believe it is best to continue since both Mr. Bouie and Mr. Champion were committed to moving forward with the August 16 date. Thanks! -- Tressa

Tressa,

As ADH is really the main agency involved with the data wouldn't it be better to schedule it for a time they could attend. ADEQ's role in the data has been to make it available through our website for transparency. Otherwise, we can address everything else but as far as continued collection etc. we would not be able to speak for the Health Dept.

Hi, Heinz – Below is the list of community and industry members who are expected to attend the Crossett Air Charrette as of today. As I mentioned on our call yesterday, ADEQ staff who attend the meeting should be knowledgeable about the voluntary air monitoring project and surrounding issues related to environmental odors and hydrogen sulfide. For example, we know that community members have expressed concern about odors and emissions from the facility and the wastewater treatment system. Having staff who can contribute to the discussion on these issues will help us maximize this opportunity to improve communication and cooperation between the key stakeholders. Please let me know if you have any questions. Thank you! -- Tressa
